The curriculum has to be very clear with the teaching learning methods including ICT

The syllabus should be revised for a few subjects

The design of curriculum must be considered from all aspects like job, skill and prospects for students' wellbeing

Not all reading materials are available online

Take job trends into consideration in developing a cirriculum.

Course outcomes must be made clear

The present syllabus should be updated and improved to make it learner centric and designed in such a way to prepare the students for the job market and to make them employable on completion of the course.

The Learning Outcome may not be suitable with the employment needs as the Syllabus is not updated regularly.

We are left unsure at the moment with regard to the changes in education policy. It's the implementation or lack of it that is critical to the future.
